

Other Hearts

Did you ever in some chamber of your heart,
Feel a murmur as you watched me fall apart?
There must have been a hundred times you saw me cry
Did you ever stop to ask yourself the reason why?

Did a spark in some dark corner of your mind
Light a thought about the ones you left behind?
Did you ever try to listen to a word I'd say?
Well, you never were a listener anyway

Now all is in the past
Did you notice
Has it struck at last
There are millions of other hearts
Ticking ticking ticking ticking
Ticking ticking ticking ticking

I flip from hour to hour between extremes
Longing for the timelessness of dreams
I search our broken days before I go to sleep
Looking for a moment that I'd want to keep

Now all is in the past
Did you notice
Has it struck at last
There are millions of other hearts
Ticking ticking ticking ticking
Ticking ticking ticking ticking...

These other hearts, that can feel
That can love, they will heal me
